

Tables Turning

Concentrating on a new potion, Mike was in an absolute trance as he was racing to finish his experiment.

All of Mike's miserable life he was bullied. He was always tiny so he was seen as an easy target to physically bully. That's why he decided to attempt to put a halt to all of that nonsense and to show the abominable, cantankerous child what it can be like.

Mike's plan was to brew an elixir that would make him grow rapidly. Mike used to be a bashful, demure child but not anymore.

Just about to drink it when suddenly he coughed and some dropped on the fragile glass on the floor in the path of a spider. The spider legged over to it and swam in it.

Mike hated spiders and always killed them but now the tables were turned! ...